

Article extrait de : The Washington Post – Online – March 30th 2018

These 5 bottles show that great Bordeaux wine needn't be expensive

Food

These 5 bottles show that great Bordeaux wine needn't be expensive

By Dave McIntyre Columnist, Food March 30

★★★★ Exceptional ★★☆☆ Excellent ★☆☆☆ Very Good

Most Read Lifestyle

- 1 Trump said Sinclair 'is far superior to CNN.' What we

(Deb Lindsey / For The Washington Post)

The 2015 and 2016 vintages of Bordeaux' "petit chateau" are kind of like when a patisserie presents a platter of canelés, the small rum-flavored cakes native to Bordeaux, with a custardy center and crispy exterior, fresh from the oven. You want to scoop them all up and cry, "Vive la France!"

Chateau Moulinat 2015

★★★

Bordeaux, $14

Textbook Bordeaux, offering the traditional "pencil" graphite aromas over scents of plum, cherry and blackcurrant. And the wine kept getting better over a few days, suggesting it will last for several years in your cellar, and will reward decanting if you can't wait. Sustainably farmed, it is packaged in a traditional wooden box for a case. ABV: 13 percent.

Distributed by Le Storie: Available in the District at A. Litteri, Ace Beverage, Cordial Fine Wine & Spirits, DCanter. Available in Virginia at Arrowine and Cheese in Arlington; Chain Bridge Cellars in McLean; Corks & Kegs; J. Emerson Fine Wines & Cheese, Once Upon a Vine (MacArthur Avenue, Stratford Hills) and Union Market in Richmond; Department of Beer and Wine in Alexandria; Grape + Bean (Old Town Alexandria, Rosemont); Tastings of Charlottesville and Wine Warehouse in Charlottesville; Vino Market in Midlothian.

GREAT VALUE

To read more : https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/food/these-5-bottles-show-that-great-bordeaux-wine-neednt-be-expensive/2018/03/29/4916c11a-32d5-11e8-8abc-22a366b72f2d_story.html?utm_term=.dc3d340b6bc8